

Environmental Educator

Overview

As an Environmental Educator, your goal is to educate groups about energy conservation, ecology and sustainability. Whether presenting to school groups or on guided tours, your main goal is helping people learn about environmental issues in a fun and interactive manner.

Roles and Responsibilities

Your job is to educate groups about renewable energy sources, ecology, sustainability and other environmental issues. You may also be involved in designing workshops, lectures and environmental curricula. Often, your presentations may involve a strong hands-on component. At times, you may be expected to complete outreach or media relations. You may be working from one site or travelling to multiple locations/classrooms.

Skills: Communicator, Leader, Organizer, Presentation, Interpersonal

Personal Interests: Education, Community, Marketing, Speaking, Hands-On, Speaking

Work Environment: Roaming to Schools, on Numerous Sites

Education and Experience: University or College Degree, Teaching experience with children highly recommended

Salary: $20,000-$40,000